

DO GOODERS AND NO HARMERS

Do gooders are bound to do a lot of harm if their concept of the good happens not to coincide with that of their presumed beneficiaries--even worse if they attempt to impose it by force. Perhaps for this reason, as well as for egoism, a number of philosophers, from Epicurus to Popper, have advocated the neutral norm Do no harm.

100 8483
11 144