

THE MAIN GOAL: TO ENJOY LIFE

Samuel Butler (1903, Ch. 19): "All animals, except man, know that the principal business of life is to enjoy it--and they do enjoy it as much as man and other circumstances will allow."

Idem: "Progress has ever been through the pleasures rather than through the extreme sharp virtues, and the most virtuous have leaned to excess rather than to asceticism".

Butler, S. (1903) The Way of All Flesh. Repr.: Harmondsworth: Penguin Books, 1966.

inv 83146

11 307